The KeyMacro Designer allows authors to define macros which can be called from code, but are not displayed in the intellisense. It can be used to create custom validation, change event triggers, or logic which is to be executed at compile time. BONUS The Snippet Designer is packed in a VSIX VSIX file. BONUS The Snippet Designer plugin is developed on the premise that it is runnable and extensible. BONUS The Snippet Designer comes with an example of building a reusable form control with predefined content. I can't find the Code Editor. To describe the frequency, nature and outcome of dermatology emergencies presented to emergency departments and to identify the predictors of mortality and morbidity. Two-hundred and twenty-five patients who presented with dermatology emergencies between January and December 2003 to the emergency department of the University College Hospital, Ibadan, were studied. We determined the frequency, nature, and outcome of each dermatology emergency by extracting data from patients' files. Mortality and morbidity were determined by searching for cases of death and injuries on discharge in the emergency department's records. Cutaneous melanoma was the most common dermatology emergency (44.3%), followed by angiomas (19.5%), insect bite (10.7%), herpes simplex (7.2%), dermatitis (6.7%), exfoliative dermatitis (4.4%), dermatitis in non-immunocompromised patients (3.9%), pityriasis rosea (3.2%), and lichen planus (2.3%). All the patients presented with pain (88.5%) and pruritus (29.8%). Angiomas and herpes simplex were associated with mortality and morbidity in 24.4% and 28.3% of patients, respectively, while melanomas in 27.1% and pityriasis rosea in 13.8% of patients, respectively. Dermatitis and dermatitis in non-immunocompromised patients were not associated with mortality or morbidity. All the dermatology emergencies were managed conservatively. Dermatology emergencies are not uncommon in emergency departments and should be considered a separate category of patients for initial management in an emergency department. Dermatology 77a5ca646e

What am I missing? Note: The snippet designer is a Visual Studio 2015 extension. I've verified that the syntax highlighting for snippets is present in both VS2017 and VS2019. What I've tried: Updating to the latest version of the extension using the VSIX Installer (1.2.7.7) Installing the VSIX under the VS directory (Visual Studio 2017) Restarting VS, noting that the problem still occurs Clearing the cache via Tools > Options > Text Editor > C# > Code Snippet Designer > "Do not automatically clear the snippets cache." Other things I've tried: Reinstalling the extension in VS, making sure that the extension is pointed to the latest version Restarting the machine Note that I've been told it's OK if the cache is not cleared. A: This is a bug in VS, it's already fixed and in a new version, so you will not be able to use the extension for the moment. Hemodynamic and long-term clinical assessment of the isobutyl-N-[2-[(diethylamino)methyl]-1-methyl-2-phenylpropyl]-carbamate (mephedrone) test in healthy volunteers. Although self-reported adverse events following mephedrone consumption are rare, its short half-life and the high demand for this drug suggests a higher incidence of adverse events under the test conditions usually implemented in study protocols. To determine whether the administration of the m-TAM test under the conditions of a Phase I clinical trial might result in an increase in cardiovascular and respiratory adverse events, 22 healthy volunteers were given 1 mg/kg mephedrone orally. Pre- and post-test pulse rates, respiratory rates, blood pressures and electrocardiograms were recorded for 15 h and 2 months, respectively, following drug administration. Adverse events were monitored at the test site, and the volunteers were encouraged to report any such events. No adverse events were reported. In order to determine whether the dose used in this study would be considered to have caused long-term effects, heart rate and blood pressure were assessed over a 2-month period. One volunteer had a substantial decrease in heart rate, associated with a diagnosis of vasovagal syncope (systolic blood pressure = 15 mmHg). This volunteer also reported mild dizziness. Otherwise, there were no changes in
