But.Q: how to add a ppa to existing installation i'm having an issue with the latest codeblocks, the latest version was released and the official site doesn't support it yet, so i found that there is a ppa that has it but i can't add it, i don't know how to add a ppa to an existing installation i tried to add the ppa but nothing shows up in ubuntu software, and also i tried to add it in the additional drivers in the software but nothing worked when i try to add the ppa in the software i get the following message the software center encountered an unexpected error any help would be much appreciated EDIT: i added the ppa and i tried it again but the same message occurred A: Go to terminal. Once in the terminal, sudo add-apt-repository ppa:danielrichter2007/codeblocks Then, to update the package list, sudo apt-get update Then, you can upgrade the codeblocks for your Ubuntu. The present invention relates to a liquid crystal display (LCD), and more particularly to a TFT (thin film transistor) array substrate for the LCD and a method of fabricating the substrate. When the characteristics of the channel resistance of a thin film transistor (TFT) are tested, it is necessary to separate the TFT array substrate after the TFT array substrate is completed by taking off the connecting line and the gate pad electrode. This separation method includes anisotropic etching of the source/drain regions, formation of an island pattern, and dicing of the substrate. The method wherein the substrate is cut to separate the devices causes the degradation of the substrate. It is then necessary to employ a complex step for recovering the substrate. To avoid the complex step, a technique has been proposed in which a photo-resist layer is formed on the TFT array substrate, which is then irradiated with a laser beam and thereby patterned to form an opening, and a
