Have you ever been woken up at night hearing screaming, and what sounds like a fight break out inside your home. However, there is no one there? You would most likely first think it was a crazy person, or your little pet, or even a burglar. After all, the lights are off, and you are awakened. Still, the cries of a baby are unmistakable. However, you know in your heart that it must be something else. You rush to the living room and discover the world, your house, surrounded by a demonic army of monsters. Your neighbors have died long ago, their homes have been overrun with ghastly creatures, and they are now trapped inside their homes as the demons feast on them slowly. You realize that you are not the only one, and quickly decide to do something. What awaits within the nearby forest where the creatures come from? Where this forest is, is no longer on the map... This requires a good aim, and can easily result in a quick death. Boomerang: This can be used to repel, and trap enemies for a short period of time. Rocket: Fires upon impact. Stick: This acts as a shield to protect you when being attacked. The other 2 skills are: Grenades: these can be used to take out many enemies at a single shot. Piercing Bullets: The strength of these varies with each weapon, and you will notice the power on your upgrades as you continue to upgrade. These 5 skills allow you to upgrade your character in terms of health, damage, speed, and accuracy of your weaponry. Also upgrade your House, and farm for various types of items. Your House will also have a limit for how many attacks you can do, which is indicated by the weapon meter. This is to make your life a bit more interesting. You can use your items, but you cannot spam them. If you find yourself at a dead end, you can also buy the Rescue Missions, which will bring you closer to reaching the end of the game. css file:: /* */ .redDiv { background-color: #ff0000; position: absolute; height: 100%; width: 100%; font-size: 9px; border: 1px solid #cccccc; border-radius: 3px; } The border wraps around it... A: Yes, the solution is adding border-color: rgba(255,255,255,.5); to the.redDiv class so it wont inherit the.blackDiv style from the color: #000; why? Because the color: #000; will cover the.redDiv style because of the specificity of the first selector. Update: I just couldn't let this go without explaining CSS specificity. Basically, based on this: If the type selector has an exact match or a match by application, it has more specificity than the!important rule and can be set over other rules with specificity. If there is an!important rule defined it overrides all other selectors of the same specificity and is used as if the rule was defined without the!important flag. Example: div { font-size: 36px; } .redDiv { background-color: #ff0000!important; } .blackDiv { color: #000; } The div should have a black background.

The div should have a red background.
You can't just add an!important rule to your.blackDiv class
