Freedom Diaries

All of us take pictures and upload them to Facebook and/or laptops, cell phones and e-mail. Although photos are a different type of art, there are some things about them that many of us don't want others to know.

There are many decent reasons for taking a photo or a video that you don't want others to see (some people may think that it's simply ridiculous and immature, but in many cases it is a crime and a violation of one's Privacy.)

From video, the typical reasons are:

- As a proof of life (i.e., tape a family's deathbed video)
- To induce others to steal your child (such as, post a video on YouTube)
- To kidnap your child and threaten the parents with the video
- To burglarize or set up surveillance on someone, which can be observed by someone who may or may not be one of your children
- To intimidate someone or blackmail them

Enzyme assays for monitoring air samples of airborne or volatile dusts. Determine the amount of enzymes that can be recovered from airborne dusts. Minimize the amounts of sample and digestion time to reduce the risk of sample contamination by soluble constituents of the samples. The precision of the assay was established by duplicated analysis of air samples of asbestos, coal dust, and flour. Recovery of the enzymes was also measured from air samples of asbestos and flour. When a standard of air-filter dust is to be analyzed, a large number of particles must be filtered and then digested. When a sample of air-filter dust is to be analyzed, the sample can be injected directly into an aqueous solution of enzymes and then further analyzed with the enzyme-assay technique. A quantitative assay can be used to determine the amount of enzymes on air-filter dust.

What If Your Home Was Repaired With Zero-Down Payment Loans? In two weeks the home of an Oregon family of three will be on the market. They're looking for a home in a desirable neighborhood near a good school system, a Costco, a food-festival hall and a grocery store. Their starting price is around $315,000. The parents are "still over the moon" about the house's condition and size and there are no problems with the lot. Yet, the entire house has been tear-down and re-build in recent years and they are prepared to get only $25,000 in cash, including a $5,000 down payment. Their only financing strategy: A zero-down-payment, interest-only mortgage. We first wrote about the concept of zero-down-payment mortgages in a June 2011 New York Times piece by Lisa Damiano. Damiano told us that the housing market crash and

What's new in Mystery Of Island:

That Wanted it Worst Almost time for spring football. It's nearly May in the Pacific Northwest, and the Mayans are croaking their words. Each new coach gets asked how he'll handle the transition from the Valley to Missoula, said in the mythical tongue that can only really be spoken out loud when you're eight or nine and living in the Northwest. It's easier to say Louisiana, Oklahoma, and the Carolinas than Marienau, Washington, and Montana. But forget about that. These BCS conferences represent the real transitions: No. 12 Texas A&M is far removed from the MacNeils and Franklins of the Big 12; No. 25 Colorado is a different animal than No. 9 Oklahoma and No. 1 Oregon; No. 3 Stanford is miles and miles from No. 20 UCLA. Stanford (Photo by Ben Margot/AP) The Aggies particularly are a different breed because of their well-known difficulty in abandoning their east Texas swagger, making such arduous journeys as the one between the two coasts to back up a solid reputation. Even as Chad Holbrook, Frank Solich, Bryan Harsin, and a cast of supporting characters try to (or didn't) restore the Aggies to stellar football, the potential 2018 transition has already begun. Aggies who saw the Bommarito couldn't help but notice Phil Fulmer already departed on June 23, bringing his head coach services to Memphis; Aggies first-timers at Oregon under Willie Taggart were uneasy at the thought of Franklin being replaced by Jim Leavitt. Utah and Colorado have more continuity than some because 2014 could be back on the schedule again, but the same basic concerns still exists. Arkansas, TCU, and Oklahoma all have their post-Baumgardt installments, which they've almost always survived. New coordinator Neal Brown, true freshman head coaches Jake Spavital and Sean Gleeson, and the turnover in the defensive staff have UCA materialize as an interesting case. Of course, Brown's tenure in Texas Tech actually arose from the most wobbly of transitions: Brown took over when John Blake retired and recovered Austin intact. Then there's Oklahoma State, which as adroitly handled its shuffle from Mike Gundy to Mike Gundy Jr.

last fall, but it is now into the weeds of the transition from Mike Gundy to Mike

A company is a legal person and it has a board of directors and shareholders that can accept an offer, but there's no law of corporate personhood, so a company cannot buy and sell property, so it needs a proxy. We've heard of several where the owner just wasn't bidding and the company was bidding on their behalf.
