selling on this stock started before it went public. At some point the management at the company sold their shares too. Many people invested in it because they were confident that the company was going to be successful and their shares would go up in value. That is not something that we can expect right now. You can't tell where the stock will go, but selling a week before it goes public doesn't look so great.

----- tdudden This was basically what I expected. It was my understanding that the offering was so small

(which I think was reasonable) that it was only a way to stay qualified with the small offering rules. Otherwise,
