Activa Windows 10 Professional Y Office 2016 Professional Plus || FUNCIONA!! 2019

Activating Windows 10 Enterprise for volume license users has been a multi-faceted challenge for Windows customers. Previously, all volume licensed users of the OS and Office 2015 were required to purchase volume licenses (VLs) for either Office or Windows separately. Then there is no longer any single product that you need to purchase to be able to act in volume. This makes both activation and licensing much simpler, because all you need is a single product key. There is a User Instance (UI) and a User Activation List (UAL) that are used for activating the OS and Office. UAL is an internal key used to activate your Windows 10 Enterprise edition on a computer that is not a member of the Windows Enterprise Education or Business family . UI is a serial number used to activate a single instance of the software for one user. In addition, there is also a UI and a UAL that can be used to activate Windows 10 Home . Note: Office activation by phone is not available for Office 365 for Business and Business Essentials. Office activation for business products is not applicable to other Office 365 editions. Refer to this page for more information. People can log in and do whatever they want by using the Windows 10 license they get when they buy the computer or by using a (volume) license if purchased separately. However, we recommend that people buy a qualifying version of Office to avoid any surprises. If you have a qualifying version of Office and the volume key not activate the application, you could get an error message similar to the one below.Microsoft Office pro plus is not activated. To proceed, close this message and activate the product with an activated product key. Then try the installation again.For more information on activating your version of Microsoft Office, contact your PC manufacturer or visit Microsoft.com/activate offices installed with the end user license agreement (eula) program are installed on your computer and can be activated remotely from a computer running the office product activation (opa) tool. the opa tool is a remote desktop client application that allows you to activate your office installation remotely. "microsoft says that the os requirements for office 365 and microsoft 365 are in alignment with the requirements for windows 10. office 365 and microsoft 365 customers need to be on a version of windows 10 that is supported for the products they use." the modern lifecycle policy states that windows 10 enterprise is currently the only edition of windows 10 that is supported on office 365 and microsoft 365. this means that if you are an office 365 or microsoft 365 customer, you cannot use the retail editions of windows 10. the windows 10 enterprise edition remains the only edition of windows 10 that is supported on office 365 and microsoft 365. it's also the only edition that supports the use of the windows defender application guard technology, which protects your office 365 and microsoft 365 instances from exploits that might affect them, such as remote code execution, fileless exploits, and others. windows 10 enterprise is the only edition of windows 10 that is supported on office 365 and microsoft 365, and it's also the only edition that supports the use of windows defender application guard. these two features alone make enterprise a very attractive edition. the modern lifecycle policy takes effect on july 17, 2019, and is currently valid through july 17, 2020. at that time, the os requirements for office 365 and microsoft 365 will be aligned with the requirements for windows 10.
