thanks the first thing you need to do is login to your router. for many routers, that login is the default password, 192.168.1. to login to your router, you simply enter the default username and password, usually that is the password for the username admin or whatever the name of the username is. after you enter the username and password, you will be taken to the router's admin page. here you can change a variety of settings. depending on the router, the settings you can change may vary. some routers allow you to change the name of the network, change the admin username, or change the password. when you find the page that you want to change, make sure to have a look at the page's security or login credentials. make sure you have your username and password clearly displayed. now that you have a basic knowledge of how to get to your router's admin page, you can start configuring it. typically you will need to log in, go to the security page, then click on the username you want to make changes to. once you are in the proper security page, you will need to change the password. this is usually the default password, but you will want to double check. you will also need to change the username, which will be the same username as the default username. to change the username, just click the "username" drop down menu, and select another username. 5ec8ef588b
